Industrial Hygiene Services

Industrial hygiene is the science and art devoted to the anticipation, recognition, evaluation, and control of environmental factors and stressors in the workplace that may cause sickness, impaired health and well-being, or significant discomfort among workers. The industrial hygienist uses environmental monitoring and analytical methods to detect the extent of worker exposure and employ engineering, work practice controls, and other methods to control potential health hazards.

The Air Compliance Group (ACG) will provide its clients with an effective industrial hygiene program consisting of the application of the staff's knowledge to anticipate and recognize health hazards that arise out of workplace operations and processes, evaluate and measure the magnitude of the hazard, and provide accurate recommendations to control or eliminate the hazard.

ACG will provide the following services in accordance with Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) regulations, National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) standards, and the American Industrial Hygiene Association (AIHA), American Board of Industrial Hygiene (ABIH) and American Conference of Governmental Industrial Hygienists (ACGIH) guidelines:

- Comprehensive baseline industrial hygiene services
- Sampling strategy development
- Industrial hygiene program audits
- Program development and implementation assistance
- Exposure monitoring
- Ventilation evaluations
- Personal protection equipment audits
- Respiratory protection training and fit-testing
- Confined space entry monitoring
- OSHA compliance
- Training on a variety of topics

ACG professionals combine extensive experience, proven methodology, and state-of-the-art techniques to address a host of workplace hazards.
